MEDITATION: The Still Life app launches Dec. 10 to the public.

CLARA HARTER

From a Venice based team of UCLA graduates comes a new meditation app seeking to cut through the crowded mindfulness market with the power of simplicity.

Its streamlined "just press play" model provides a unique daily stillness meditation that disappears after 24 hours. It is designed to eliminate choice paralysis and allow users to focus entirely on the practice.

The app launches on Dec. 10 and offers meditations for sleep, anxiety, stress, and productivity in addition to its signature stillness practice.

The team swears by the practice and says it's what allowed them to remain calm and seamlessly pivot

Council bids farewell to O'Day, Winterer and Jara

BRENNON DIXSON

City Councilmembers Ana Maria Jara, Terry O'Day and Ted Winterer bid farewell to fellow councilmembers and the constituents they've represented over the years during an emotional meeting last week.

Following the results from the November 3 election, Oscar de la Torre, Christine Parra and Phil Brock are set to replace the outgoing councilmembers during a meeting scheduled for Dec. 8. But city leaders took time last Tuesday to share their gratitude and celebrate Jara's two years of service, O'Day's ten years of service, and Winterer's eight years of service during their last meeting as a unit.

COMMUNITY BRIEFS

City of Santa Monica leaders approved a 28th supplement last week that allows specific business operations and recovery measures to move forward, including expanded curbside pickup zones and activation of the unused portions of the parking lane on Main Street, as well as cleanup measures now that we are into the eighth month of the pandemic.

In June, Santa Monica restaurants rolled out no-cost permits for use of the public-right-of-way and private outdoor space to accommodate outdoor dining and business operations. While restaurants must suspend in-person dining through December 21 and businesses once again must rescale their operations under Los Angeles County's partial Safer at Home Order due to increased spread of the virus, the City is committed to doing all it can for the business community, city leaders said.

"The City of Santa Monica is committed to working with our local businesses to expand use of the public space, offer free permits and advocate for the financial relief only federal stimulus can provide," said Interim City Manager and Director of Emergency Services Lane Dilg. "As the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health order takes effect temporarily closing outdoor dining, we ask our community to please continue rallying around beloved local businesses by buying local through takeout, curbside, and delivery options."

SPECIFIC TO BUSINESS OPERATIONS, THE 28TH SUPPLEMENT:*

- Authorizes the City to enter into temporary encroachment agreements with Santa Monica retail and other non-restaurant businesses that submit a no-fee application to utilize the unused portions of the parking lane on Main Street where the City has placed K-rails.
- Waives the permit fee for tents larger than 400 square feet for any special event permit filed with the Santa Monica Fire Department in connection with a temporary use authorized by Sections 1 to 10 of this supplement relating to the temporary Main Street expansion or Sections 19 to 78 of the - Third Revised Eighteenth Supplement relating to the temporary use of sidewalks, parklets, and private outdoor space.
- Expands temporary curbside pickup zones by allowing the designation and use of on-street parking spaces where no metered spaces are adjacent to the business.

THE 28TH SUPPLEMENT ALSO CLEANS UP EARLIER TIMELINES AND EMERGENCY ORDERS. SPECIFICALLY, IT:

- Clarifies that the two-year extension of deadlines for planning, review, and permit actions implemented by the Third Revised Eighteenth Supplement does not extend the deadlines for appeals as set forth in Articles VIII and IX of the Santa Monica Municipal Code.
- Authorizes voluntary temporary disconnection of City water service for commercial property accounts, excluding fire service accounts, upon payment of a temporary disconnection fee of $208.00.
- Clarifies that landlords' service of required Notices of Terminations of Tenancy in accordance with instructions from the Rent Control Board upon its acceptance of a notice of intent to Ellis a building will not violate the eviction moratorium, while specifying that no unlawful detainer action based on removal of a unit from the rental market pursuant to the Ellis Act may be filed until sixty days after the expiration of this Order.
- Extends the suspensions of water service shut off and imposition of late payment penalties for unpaid or delinquent water, sewer, and/or refuse and recycling collection bills through March 31, 2021.

California Assembly to meet in NBA arena for new session

The California Assembly will be trading its Capitol chambers for a downtown NBA arena when it kicks off the new session Dec. 7 in an effort to limit coronavirus spread.

Speaker Anthony Rendon said Wednesday the extra space and better air filtration at the Golden 1 Center will help keep lawmakers, staff and the press safe. The Senate, meanwhile, will still convene in its regular chambers, President Pro Tempore Toni Atkins said in a statement. Neither chamber will allow guests, including lawmakers' families.

"Moving this event away from the Assembly Chambers and not allowing guests to attend were difficult decisions to make," said Rendon, a Democrat. "Given the circumstances of rapidly growing COVID-19 rates across the state, we need to do everything we can to keep members, their families, staff, and the public safe."

The arena, home to the Sacramento Kings' NBA team, is several blocks from the Capitol.

Lawmakers will be sworn in at the December meeting for the new two-year session, and they will return for work in January. The Assembly has 80 members and the Senate has 40.

Atkins, who is also a Demcocrat, said health officials deemed the Senate's distancing and screening procedures, as well as its air filtration systems and no-guest policy, as sufficient to meet in the chamber safely. The Senate has 40 members.

"When Californians are changing holiday traditions and putting off graduations, weddings, and other important events, the Senate wants to make sure that we are conducting this essential public business in a way that reflects the seriousness of the times and respects the sacrifices Californians are making," she said in a statement

Coronavirus cases are on the rise across California. In the spring, both chambers suspended their sessions to avoid spreading the virus. After they returned, several lawmakers and staff contracted the virus.

When Republican Sen. Brian Jones tested positive for the virus after attending a caucus meeting in August, Atkins barred members he'd had contact with from the chamber, instead requiring them to participate and vote virtually.

For the First Time in 108 Years, Operation Santa is Nationwide

Let's face it, this year has been a struggle for so many people in more ways than one. Thoughts of kids, the holidays and wondering how to provide for them may also be weighing heavily on many. But take heart, Santa and the Postal Service are way ahead of you, and are here to help.

The USPS Operation Santa program celebrates its 108th year in 2020 by opening up for nationwide participation. Now, more than ever, the program is needed to help less fortunate kids and families during the holidays.

The Postal Service established the USPS Operation Santa program to help those in need at the holidays experience the joy of opening presents – and to create special holiday memories. Since it began, millions of less fortunate children and their families have been helped by the kindness of others. The program is for every person of every belief, or non-belief. The purpose is to help as many deserving families as possible. And that can only be done if good-hearted adopters step forward.

To participate in the USPS Operation Santa program as a possible recipient of holiday gifts, all you have to do is write a letter, put it in a stamped envelope with a return address, and send it to Santa's official workshop address as seen on the example envelope below. Letters will be accepted through Dec. 15.

PROGRAM DETAILS

Hundreds of thousands of letters are written to the USPS Operation Santa program every year in hopes of being adopted by kind and generous people across the country. These letters are opened by Santa's Elves and, for safety reasons, all personally identifiable information of the letter writer is removed (i.e. last names, addresses, ZIP Codes) and uploaded to USPSOperationSanta.com for adoption.

Beginning Dec. 4, letters will be available for nationwide adoption by visiting USPSOperationSanta.com – all from the socially distant safety of your own home. Potential adopters can read the letters and pick one, or more, that they'd like to fulfill. For security reasons, potential adopters must be vetted by going through a short registration and ID verification process before they are allowed to adopt any letter.

Companies also help adopt letters. Every year many companies create teams and adopt several letters. All the better to help grant that special wish to deserving families and kids.

HOW TO WRITE A LETTER

Sending a letter to Santa is easy if you know how. The Postal Service is here to help with guides and tips to help kids write and send their best letters ever. All the information you could possibly need to write a letter, address an envelope, put on a stamp and send it on its way can be found on USPSOperationSanta.com and in our Holiday Newsroom. The only thing the Postal Service can't help with is to tell kids what to ask for. That is up to their imagination, and we would never stifle creativity. These tips are also good all year-round for sending thank-you cards, birthday cards, or letters to Grandma and Grandpa just to say, "Hi."

after COVID-19 forced the closure of the Still Life Center. The center was intended to teach stillness meditations to corporate teams and community members, but had to shutter doors mere weeks after opening.

"The closure was disappointing on the surface but we all went back to using these tools and techniques. Stillness is an unbelievable tool to poke your head up above the bushes and get the perspective of what's really there," said Spencer Atkins, co-founder of The Still Life. "It turned into the best gift we could've ever had because it allowed us to live by what we taught and design an incredible product and service around it."

The stillness practice is based on the teachings of meditation guru Jim George. Atkins was introduced to George while he was playing football at UCLA and struggling with questions about his career and academics. Atkins says the practice allowed him to identify what mattered most to him and optimize his physical and emotional wellbeing.

"Stillness is a state of awareness with no perception of past or future. Because all "negative" emotions are rooted one way or another in the past or future, stillness is a state in which it is neurologically impossible to experience a negative emotion," said Atkins.

Atkins continued to work with George as he pursued a career in real estate and in his free time would organize weekend stillness retreats for his friends and family. Eventually, Atkins took the leap alongside fellow UCLA grad and Co-Founder Henry Mitchell to make stillness the center of his career. He's never looked back.

"We want to be doing this for decades," said Atkins. "This isn't something that we're just going to scale up and flip in one to two years, this is something that we are all going to be doing probably for the rest of our lives."

The app will offer a monthly or yearly subscription, with trial options for people who are hesitant to commit. Every Monday will include a longer stillness meditation to start working with values, patterns and habits. There are also several "change your state" options to help users control their emotions.

'SOS mode' is for extreme stress or anxiety and is designed to break fight or flight states to return to a more grounded state. 'Go mode' is for productivity and includes breath and movement work to energize and optimize the physical mind.

'Sleep mode' is designed to—you guessed it—put you to sleep and is apparently so effective that developers could only work on it 15 minutes at a time without dozing off themselves.

The team is thrilled about the upcoming release of the app that will allow anyone, anywhere, at any time to tap into a stillness practice. They also look forward to reopening the Still Life Center in-person whenever circumstances allow.

COUNCIL

Emotions were high as each representative took a few moments to speak at the beginning of the meeting. Councilmember Gleam Davis offered her heartfelt appreciation for the trio's hard work, especially in recent times.

"Their devotion to the city has really really shown through in your work and it certainly has been felt by your colleagues and I think by the residents of the city as well," Davis said.

"And, you know, I really anticipated turning the reins over to you (Terry)," Mayor Kevin McKeown added later in the meeting, "and I deeply regret that that will not be the case."

Councilmember Sue Himmelrich said she and O'Day did not always agree on certain matters, "but we both do have our principles and we were able to work by it every time. And we did agree on many matters of good governance and taking action — and I appreciated your help with all of that every time we did it. But above all else, I really appreciate the fact that you believe in things and you act consistent with your beliefs. And I believe in that, so I really hope we get to work together again."

Himmelrich then turned to address Jara, who has brought so much to the council, Himmelrich said.

"You've taught everybody in the community about how having diversity does make us better... and I really honor you for that," Himmelrich added, before she described Winterer as a person who has helped her learn so much about local government.

"Today might be my last day, but I leave with my head held very high because my integrity has not been marred," Jara said when the outgoing council members were given a chance to speak.

Winterer had the "unenviable task" of following Jara's speech but the former mayor said, "I'm just so pleased to have done what we've done in the last eight years... and like everyone else, I'm not really riding off into the sunset. I'll still be around and look forward to being involved in the community for years to come."

O'Day wished his peers the best in their endeavors and continued dedication to public service.

"I think that this city council, which this is its last meeting, has done an exemplary job of representing all of us. I'm not ashamed to say I voted for all of you and I regret the fact that we're coming to an end of this involvement," McKeown said. But one thing I will let you know... you're not free to just disappear. We expect you to be active participants in our community. We need you."

Watershed Protection Program to Host Free Rain Barrel Installation Webinar

Los Angeles Sanitation and Environment's Watershed Protection Program will host a free Zoom webinar to encourage local homeowners to install rain barrels on their properties just in time for the rainy season.

The webinar will occur from 10:30 a.m. until noon Saturday, Dec. 5. Interested residents are encouraged to sign up for the free webinar online at bit.ly/2UZnJmS.

Aside from learning rain barrel installation tips, participants will also learn about rebates for the purchase of a rain barrel and why rain barrels are a simple way to conserve water, protect the environment and reduce water bills.

Sustainable gardening and landscaping expert Mike Garcia, founder of EnviroScape, will host the webinar and provide step-by-step instructions on how to install rain barrels at your home, while highlighting how the collected rainwater can be used to irrigate lawns and gardens and minimize the amount of water flowing into storm drains and local waterways.

For more information on the program, visit its webpage and register online at bit.ly/2UZnJmS.

RAIN: An average wet season in the region produces over 15 inches of rainfall, which can be used for irrigation purposes. Most homes have the potential to capture 9,600 gallons of rainwater that flows off of the home's roof, and residents are invited to learn more this December.

installations that each seek to bring a historic BBMT production to life. The installation is free and open to the public, which is invited to stop by the Pier's merry go-round for a peek at the scenes from the outdoors.

Director of Development and Community Partnerships Winona Bechtle said the theater has a long history of doing window displays. In fact, the tradition dates all the way back to one of his first shows Baker ever saw in a department store when he was just a kid around the 1930s, and some of his first jobs were window displays for places like Disneyland's Main Street in 1955.

"So we have a really long history of doing them — maybe even longer than we do doing puppet shows," Bechtle said with a laugh. "So, it's really cool that people will get to see this wide history of ours thanks to this partnership with the Santa Monica Pier."

The Windows of Wonderment offers a look into the different shows that have been hosted throughout the decades. "They range from the first show we did in 1955 to shows that were done in the '80s. So when you walk around, you kind of get a timeline of all of the different things we've been doing over the last 75 years," Bechtle said.

The installation was made possible by the Art of Recovery Fund, a COVID-19 economic recovery initiative by the City of Santa Monica, and local officials like Negin Singh, executive director of the Santa Monica Pier Corporation, are excited to celebrate the holidays alongside the team from the Bob Baker Marionette Theater.

"LA is home to so many iconic artists and venues, and Bob Baker Marionette Theater ranks high on that list. To bring them to our own iconic destination at the Pier in this exciting way for the holidays is a moment of light and hope for all of us out there still trying to bring art and magic during these difficult times," Singh said prior to the windows' installation last week.

Bechtle added the exhibits couldn't have been completed without the fabulous theater community. "We have just an amazing group of scenic painters, builders, and volunteers and fans of the theater who came together to replicate a lot of our historic designs," she said.

"And many of the windows are like colored stories because they feature an array of red fabrics, gold fabric, green fabrics — and it really just pulls from our collection of thousands of Marionette shows. The scenes are really dynamic," Bechtle added. "There's motion; there's amazing scenic paintings and each of them features some of our most antique puppets. It's almost like a whole show inside of a window."

DO YOU HAVE COMMUNITY NEWS?
Santa Monica Daily Press office (310) 458-7737

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (NOVEMBER 30)

You've a wonderful gift of choosing people: of knowing who is good for you and drawing close those whose lives and values fit well with yours. You're above superficiality that others fall prey to, because your focus on character keeps you refining your own and filling your life with good relationships. Aries and Taurus adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 5, 7, 20 and 18.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The time to do the thing you want to do is right now, while you still want it, while it's on your radar and within your reach, while it's ripe with potential. Grab and go.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You know very well that you don't have to be deeply in love with what you're doing to be successful at it. You'll dig in and make something happen with nothing more than a sense of duty and a handful of private reasons.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You think you have an accurate view of someone, but until you can build a case by witnessing actual patterns of behavior, you just don't know. Be patient, and collect the data.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Winning that little contest is a rush, but not as fortifying as the long-term stability you get from showing up your purpose day after day with the intention of doing what needs to be done.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You can use what you are learning in more ways than you currently are. Think of how you might apply your skill in a different but related field, genre or location. Opportunities crop up once you open your mind in this way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You don't like the feeling of being controlled by others, and you will resist subtle nudges that suggest you are being managed instead of fully experienced in the way you should be.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You're on a journey. The timing may get interrupted by setbacks and unexpected stops that cause delays but in no way change the destination. Stick to this road and you can expect to get there -- eventually.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You have a level of attunement into the patterns of others that can only be considered a gift. From the historical evidence, you can make a most potent and accurate prediction. It's right there for you if you want to see it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). It's a good time to indulge in fantasies about who you are or could be. It should be a stretch; that is the whole point about fantasizing. How boring would it be if even your fantasies had to have strict rules?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Boldness comes in many forms, sometimes even in the form of eyes filled with tears. Showing feelings and working through them may represent the very definition of courage.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're perfectly equipped to handle the task at hand -- until you're not, and at that point, you'll improvise, showing your clever, resourceful side.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). At any given moment of the day, you are somewhere between the reality of who you are and your aspiration for yourself. The way you reach is uncomfortable, beautiful and inspiring.
