THE FESTIVE FEELING ISSUE

Local talent manager for kids charged with child molestation

BY KEVIN HERRERA
Editor in Chief

DOWNTOWN A talent agent who worked with child actors out of his Santa Monica apartment and once made a living performing at children's parties was charged Thursday with eight felony counts of sexual abuse involving a boy who was an aspiring singer.

Martin Weiss, 47, of Martin Weiss Management, plead not guilty in Van Nuys Superior Court to three counts of sodomy of a person under 16, two counts each of continuous sexual abuse and lewd acts upon a child and one count of forcible lewd act upon a child.

He is being held on $800,000 bail and faces a maximum sentence of 34 years in state prison if convicted on all counts, according to the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office.

Phone calls made to Weiss' office were not returned.

The Los Angeles Times reported Weiss' clients received an e-mail alert Thursday.

"It is with a heavy heart and great sadness that I immediately dissolve Martin Weiss Management and release all actors from their contracts," the e-mail said. "Please do not try [to] contact me. I will let everyone know what is happening at the proper time. Thank you for being wonderful clients and friends."

The criminal complaint alleges that the crimes occurred between March 2005 and June 2008 and involved a boy who was under the age of 16 at the time. The alleged crimes

Hearing takes aim at SMO pollution

Pro-airport attendees claim line-up lopsided, unproductive

BY ASHLEY ARCHIBALD
Daily Press Staff Writer

WEST L.A. A State Senate select committee hearing meant to demonstrate the negative health impacts of jet pollution at Santa Monica Airport turned into a trial of SMO, with community members, politicians and even some scientists lining up against the airport.

The hearing was the first in what Sen. Ted Lieu, chair of the Senate Select Committee on Air Quality, promised to be a series of meetings examining various facets of SMO, including the environmental and health impacts and potential mitigation.

Lieu plans to use the information to craft legislation in the State Senate to curb what he considers the dangerous emissions from SMO, which he's targeting because of its proximity to homes.

"I presented legislation in 2007 and 2008, but it always died in the Senate," Lieu said. "I'm now in the senate. I feel pretty good about this. I'm going to try again."

The difference, he hopes, is a number of studies pointing at the deleterious health effects of emissions like those at SMO.

Scientists from the South Coast Air Quality Management District, UCLA and Los Angeles Unified School District presented the findings of seven studies looking at the environment around SMO and other airports.

Each of the studies made a point, Lieu said.

High winds lash SoCal; Santa Monica mostly spared

ROBERT JABLON
Associated Press

CITYWIDE Some of the worst winds in years blasted the region overnight, toppling trees and trucks, knocking out electricity to hundreds of thousands of people and bringing hurricane-force gusts of more than 100 mph to the mountains.

The winds downed power lines, darkening streets in parts of Santa Monica and the Westside as commuters made their way into work Thursday.

Santa Monica, which experienced winds as high as 35 mph, fared pretty well overall, with just two trees that toppled over.

Another two had to be removed due to damage on Thursday, city officials said.

Officials advise residents to call the Santa Monica Police Department if they discover fallen trees or power lines.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS ROUNDUP

Samohi girls open season with victory

BY DANIEL ARCHULETA

Managing Editor

VALENCIA Santa Monica High School's girls' basketball team won its season opener, 53-42, against Palmdale Knight on Wednesday as part of the Valencia High Five Classic.

Samohi took on Royal on Thursday, but the score from that game was not available at presstime.

The Vikings, who have become one of the school's premiere programs in recent years, are coming off another successful season. Last year, they advanced to the semifinals of the CIF-Southern Section Division 1AA playoffs and also won a shocker at Long Beach Poly, a perennial powerhouse. Two seasons ago, they were the CIF-SS Division 1A champs.

The Vikings lost the core of last year's team to graduation and transfer. There are three starters from last year's team that went on to NCAA Division 1 schools.

Moriah Faulk joined former Samohi star Thea Lemberger at UCLA. Point guard Kristina "KJ" Johnson is now lacing up for Pacific and forward Bianka Balthazar plays for Long Beach State.

"We're just trying to find out who we are," Head Coach Marty Verdugo said. "This is a whole different team, we'll need some time to figure things out."

A fourth starter, Briana Harris, transferred cross-town to St. Monica where she is expected to be a team leader this season.

SAMOHİ TITLE TEAM RETURNS

Members of the 2001 Samohi CIF-SS championship team in football will be in attendance this week as the Vikings travel to rival Culver City Friday for a semifinal matchup.

Charles Gordon, who played for the Minnesota Vikings, and Charles Cooper, who played in the New York Yankees organization, are expected to attend the game.

The CIF-SS Western Division playoff game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Public safety missing in SMO debate
Editor:

Thank you Daily Press for your ongoing articles on the SMO debacle. Not one word is being mentioned in the many studies, including data, various phases, consultants, presentations, visioning processes, etc., about public safety. Millions of dollars is involved.

What about public safety?

Generous spirit

Editor:

I am appalled by Dr. Hamilton's low opinion of Franklin's parents ("Donations will plunge with districtwide fundraising," Your Column Here, Nov. 29). He obviously believes that when push inevitably comes to shove and PTAs all over town are forced to rethink fundraising goals, these good people will go into a defensive crouch and refuse to share their largesse with schools in less-affluent neighborhoods.

I believe Dr. Hamilton is mistaken. I have known many Franklin parents who represent any number of generational and political viewpoints, to say nothing of levels of community involvement, but one thing they all share is a generous spirit. Maybe Dr. Hamilton thinks it's utopian and socialistic (his words) to share one's good fortune with those less blessed. For the sake of every kid in the district, I hope he has a very tough time getting other parents to agree with this sad and narrow view.

Learn from the past

Editor:

Despite the unprecedented gap between the income of the richest 1 percent of our population and the income of everyone else, every week columnist Jon Coupal argues that raising millionaires' taxes will destroy the economy ("Give jobs a chance for once," The Taxman, Nov. 30).

The Daily Press might just as well reprint George Bush's State of the Union speeches. Here's an excerpt from 2002: "Congress listened to the people and responded by reducing tax rates... . For the sake of long-term growth, let's make these tax cuts permanent."

Here's 2003: "Jobs are created when the economy grows; the economy grows when Americans have more money to spend and invest; and the best and fairest way to make sure Americans have that money is not to tax it away in the first place. I am proposing that all the income tax reductions set for 2004 and 2006 be made permanent and effective this year."

Finally, an example from 2004: "Congress has some unfinished business on the issue of taxes. The tax reductions you passed are set to expire. Unless you act ... small businesses will pay higher taxes. Unless you act, Americans face a tax increase. For the sake of job growth, the tax cuts you passed should be permanent."

Remind me please, how did these predictions turn out?

Billionaires, millionaires find peace

FOR THOSE WHO DON'T LIKE WHEN I write about sports, consider this more of a movie review that I've wanted to do for a while.

But first, after two years of wrangling and a 149-day lockout, the NBA owners (billionaires) and players (millionaires) finally reached a collective bargaining agreement, or CBA.

I suppose it's a sign of the times when the sports page includes terms like CBA, and even more so when it includes "child molestation." Every day lately there are more allegations. What does the sports world think it is, the Catholic Church?

I was actually hoping there wasn't going to be an NBA season. Now I feel like it's "Godfather III" and I'm the over-acting Al Pacino: "Just when I thought I was out, they pull me back in."

The 66-game NBA season will begin on Christmas Day. Neither here nor there, when Commissioner David Stern announced the agreement, had he been wearing a yarmulke and tallit (prayer shawl), he'd have been a dead ringer for the president of my temple.

The players agreed to give back approximately $300 million a year in salary, whereas the owners' concession was no more long-winded press conferences from Stern (sports equivalent of water boarding).

The owners basically said to the players, you must protect us against our own greed. The fact is no player ever put a gun to an owner's head for a $100 million contract. (The closest being when Latrell Sprewell choked his coach, which gave new meaning to the term "choke artist.")

While it's difficult for most fans to have sympathy for millionaire players, I do lament the decline of the labor movement in America. In the 1950s "golden age," 35 percent of our workforce was unionized. These jobs paid well enough that only one parent needed to work and the children went to state colleges, which were essentially free.

Today, union membership is 12 percent and dropping like Herman Cain's poll numbers. Now both parents have to work (if lucky enough to have jobs). And college is so expensive that it's for the elite, those on scholarship or those willing to graduate with $50,000 in student loans. (What a lovely graduation present!)

When I went to UCLA, tuition was $150 a year. (And no, I didn't commute in a horse and buggy.) Today, it's $15,000 a year, a mere 1,000 percent hike. So, when people at patriotic rallies proudly shout out "USA is No. 1" I'm not sure what they are referring to, unless it's which country is simultaneously involved in the most wars.

Labor's decline may have begun in 1980 with the election to the White House of Ronald Reagan, who had once been head of a union — the Screen Actors Guild. Even more ironic, among the legions of "Reagan Democrats" were a high percentage of union workers. And yet, one of the first orders of business for Reagan (after removing solar panels from the White House roof) was to break the Air Traffic Controllers' union.

But Reagan was so congenial that he was the "Teflon" president as nothing stuck, not even his tragic inaction over the AIDS crisis. Nor did he get flak for huge deficits, or the 283 marines who died in Lebanon, or his 11 tax hikes. (The latter would have given Grover Norquist a stroke.)

If Reagan were running today, the Tea Party would be staging nationwide protests, hopefully not in costume. Meanwhile, it's perhaps a morbid coincidence that there's now evidence that Teflon causes cancer.

But enough reminiscing about Teflon, or even the 1950s, which weren't so golden for minorities or women. But at least back then sports were an escape from society's ills. Now they're front and center. Why? Sports are big business. As Deep Throat told Woodward and Bernstein, "Follow the money."

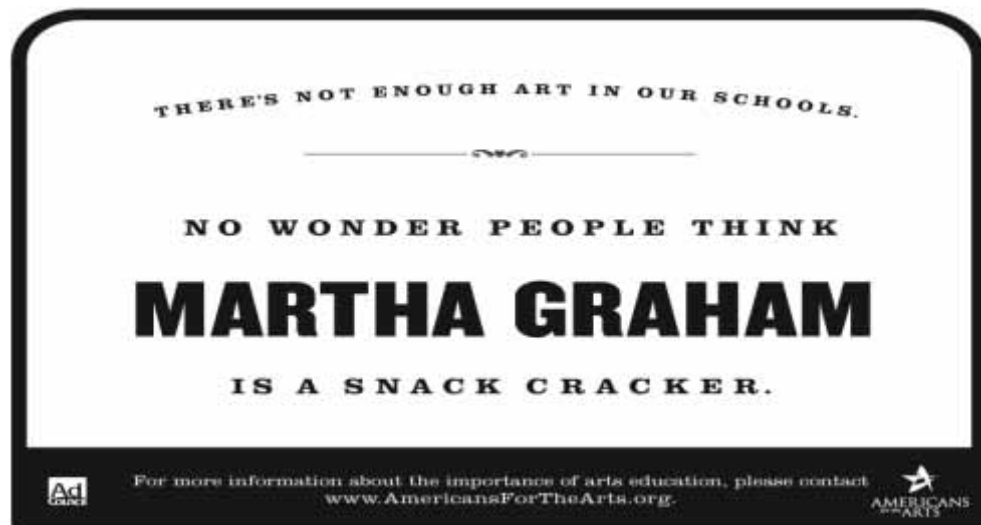

The child molestation cover up at Penn State protected the highly successful football program, which brought the university a staggering $1.5 billion endowment. Meanwhile, nobody cares about the victims who coincidentally brought in bupkis.

Then there's the Syracuse basketball sex scandal. Because of the statute of limitations, there will be no legal consequences for former associate head coach Bernie Fine, the alleged molester. That's infuriating.

But now for the mini-movie review of "Godfather III," released in 1990. I realize I'm 21 years late so let's just say I'm a procrastinator. Anyway, the movie was so horrific that the audience in the theater I saw it in cheered when the heroine (played by Coppola's daughter) was shot. She died such an overly dramatic, ludicrously slow death that one person in the crowd shouted, "Die already, bitch!" Never a good sign.

Back to reality. With Social Security, Medicare and education cutbacks skyrocketing, and wars, costly in treasure and lives, still raging, apparently there will be an NBA season. And, as embarrassing as it is to admit, I'll probably be watching.

If he's not too busy following NBA training camps, JACK can be reached at Jnsmdp@aol.com.

Charges filed against 19 Occupy L.A. protesters

CHRISTINA HOAG
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES Misdemeanor criminal charges were filed Thursday against 19 Occupy Los Angeles protesters who were arrested as police dismantled their encampment at City Hall Park.

All but one of the defendants were charged with a count of failure to disperse from the park, where nearly 500 tents had been erected at the peak of an anti-Wall Street protest, City Attorney Carmen Trutanich said.

The defendants are among the 291 protesters who were arrested early Wednesday morning when some 1,400 police officers descended on the camp. More charges were expected to be filed in the coming days.

Bail was set between $5,000 and $20,000 for the defendants, Trutanich said.

About 250 of the 291 people arrested early Wednesday were still in jail Thursday because they can't afford to post bail, attorney Ian Thompson said at a news conference. To be released, the activists would have to post 10 percent of their bail amount.

The National Lawyers Guild and Thompson said California law states people charged with misdemeanors are to be cited and released with an order to appear in court. Bail of $5,000 for a charge of failure to disperse — which most of the arrestees face — was unfair and excessive, they said.

However, the city attorney's office said bail prior to arraignment is standard according to the charge and is set by the state. A charge of failure to disperse carries an automatic bail amount of $5,000, said John Franklin, spokesman for the city attorney's office.

Thompson denounced the $5,000 bail as an "intimidation tactic" against the protesters, who were arrested when they refused to vacate their 2-month-old tent camp on the lawn surrounding City Hall.

"The city is attempting to use terror tactics to prevent people from exercising their First Amendment rights," he said.

Franklin said the allegation had no merit. The raid was hailed by Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa and Police Chief Charlie Beck as an example of non-violent police action, but some protesters said police were excessively harsh both during and after the sweep.

Mike Prysner, a protester who was arrested and released, said his handcuffs were fastened too tightly and detainees were made to sit on a cold, concrete floor for seven hours. He said he was denied the right to phone or see attorneys and was charged with an abnormally high bail for a misdemeanor.

Doug Kauffman, another protester who was arrested and released, said an officer cut his wrist as he sawed off the plastic tie handcuffs.

Others allege some officers used excessive force during the raid. A KCBS/KCAL-TV video shows activist Tyson Heder thrown to the ground twice by officers and then tackled and handcuffed by several officers. Heder had been taking photos on the steps of City Hall when officers burst through the doors behind him.

He was charged Thursday with battery and assault on a peace officer, and resisting arrest. He was jailed on $20,000 bail, said his lawyer, Joe Singleton.

Singleton said the video shows officers used excessive force, but no complaint has been filed yet. Heder's sister Christy Collins said she was shocked when she saw the video.

"It's horrifying," she said.

Police Cmdr. Andrew Smith said the department would thoroughly investigate any complaint.

Men rescued after high winds toss them from boat

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES Two men have been rescued from the chilly waters of Pyramid Lake after high winds knocked them out of their 10-foot motorboat.

Los Angeles County sheriff's Deputy Johnie Jones says a store operator alerted authorities Wednesday that a 60-year-old man and his 29-year-old son hadn't returned from a boat ride after 65 to 70 mph winds began lashing the lake, causing five-foot swells.

Sheriff's deputies found the men clinging to the side of their capsized boat and directed them on how to paddle to safety.

They were both treated for mild hypothermia.

The 60-year-old, who said he was a former opera singer from the Ukraine, sang "God Bless America" to deputies as a token of his appreciation for the rescue.

Pyramid Lake is about 56 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Suspects try to make fast getaway

Crime Watch is a weekly series culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

FRIDAY, NOV. 25, AT 9:55 P.M.,

Santa Monica police officers responded to the area of Main Street and Bicknell Avenue regarding a report of an armed robbery that just occurred. When officers arrived, they made contact with the alleged victims who said they were robbed by two men who said they had a gun. After taking the property, the suspects fled in an older model Honda Accord. Officers on patrol spotted the car in the 1400 block of Ocean Avenue and attempted a traffic stop. The suspects failed to yield and a short pursuit ensued. The suspects fled eastbound on Idaho Avenue to Second Street where officers saw the passenger jump out of the car and run while the driver continued northbound. Officers chased after the suspect on foot and quickly apprehended him. Additional officers continued chasing the driver until he too jumped from the moving vehicle on the 800 block of Second Street. After a short foot pursuit, he was taken into custody. The unmanned car traveled approximately 100 feet before sideswiping three parked cars and coming to a stop. The vehicle turned out to be stolen out of Los Angeles, police said. The suspects were positively identified and were transported to the Santa Monica Jail and booked for multiple violations, including robbery, vehicle theft, and conspiracy. During a follow up investigation, it was determined that the suspects were also responsible for three additional street robberies in Los Angeles and one attempted robbery in Los Angeles, police said. Evidence from all the robberies was recovered from the vehicle. The suspects were identified as Clement Huerta-Cruz, 18, and Osmar Davila, 25; both from Los Angeles. Bail for Huerta-Cruz was set at $50,000. No bail was set for Davila.

SUNDAY, NOV. 27

Santa Monica police took into custody a suspect wanted in connection with a residential burglary who had been arrested by Long Beach police. Officers said that on Nov. 14 at 1:10 p.m. they responded to the 1400 block of Washington Avenue regarding a report of a residential burglary. After an investigation, officers determined that the suspect used a brick to break a window and gain entry. Several rooms were ransacked and property was stolen. The forensics team processed the scene and was able to collect physical evidence which identified a man who had just been released from prison and was currently on parole. The same suspect was also linked to another residential burglary that took place on the 1900 block of Sixth Street on Nov. 21. The suspect was eventually booked for both burglaries. He was identified as Richard Gene Copp, 54, of Long Beach. His bail was set at $50,000.

FRIDAY, NOV. 25, AT 1:43 P.M.,

Officers responded to an apartment complex located on the 1300 block of Euclid Street regarding a trespassing complaint. When officers arrived, they learned that the suspect was a former resident of the apartment complex and had been evicted a month prior. Officers approached the suspect, who was on the balcony of his former apartment. During their conversation with him, officers felt the man was under the influence of drugs. The suspect was placed under arrest for being under the influence of a controlled substance and a probation violation. He was identified as Tommy Burton, 57, a transient. His bail was set at $10,000.

TUESDAY, NOV. 22, AT 10 A.M.,

Officers responded to the 300 block of Pico Boulevard regarding a report of vandalism. When officers arrived, they made contact with a witness who said they saw a man kick a city-owned parking meter several times, causing it to break and fall to the ground. The suspect then walked off with two people toward a bowling alley. That's where officers detained the man without incident. He was identified by the witness and placed under arrest for vandalism. Damage to the parking meter was estimated at $600. The suspect was identified as Robert Sanders, 32, a transient. His bail was set at $5,000.

MONDAY, NOV. 21, AT 2:35 P.M.,

Officers responded to the area of Main and Bay streets regarding a report of a strong-arm robbery that just occurred. When officers arrived, they made contact with the victim who said that he was waiting at a bus stop when he was approached by the suspect. The suspect stepped in front of him and allegedly grabbed his iPhone. The victim, fearing for his safety, gave up the phone and the suspect fled westbound on Bay Street toward the beach. Officers checking the area detained the suspect in a parking lot located on the 2000 block of Ocean Avenue. The suspect was said to be in possession of an Airsoft pistol and the victim's iPhone. The victim identified the suspect and he was placed under arrest for robbery and a probation violation. No bail was set. The suspect was identified as Jonathan Lee Atwood, 24, a transient.

MONDAY, NOV. 21, AT 10:55 A.M.,

Officers responded to Olympic High School regarding a report of a student being detained for possession of a controlled substance. When officers arrived, they made contact with the principal who said the student, who was enrolled in the Off Campus Learning Center, was in class acting strangely. The student was taken to the principal's office and eventually searched. During the search, school officials said they recovered hashish. The student was placed under arrest and booked for possession of concentrated cannabis. He was identified as Ryan Schweers, 18, of Santa Monica.

began when the boy, a former client of Weiss Management, was 11 years old and ended when he was 15. The crimes allegedly occurred at a residence in Woodland Hills as well as at Weiss' residence in Santa Monica.

Police said the alleged victim had been forced to have sex with Weiss about 30 to 40 times and was told by Weiss that "what they were doing was a common practice in the entertainment industry."

The alleged victim — now 18 — did not come forward at the time of the alleged crimes because he feared the disclosure would damage his reputation in the entertainment industry and traumatize his family, but notified authorities about a week ago out of concern that there might be other victims, according to police.

Weiss was arrested Tuesday by detectives with the Los Angeles Police Department at his home, where he operated his business for the past 14 years, according to an LAPD statement.

Investigators are requesting anyone who may have been assaulted by Weiss come forward. Anyone with information regarding the case are asked to call LAPD detectives at (818) 756-3375.

On the Weiss Management website, it says that Weiss "prides himself on his abilities to communicate with his young clients and maintain a get-up-and-go-for-it attitude."

His young clients have secured roles on such cable TV shows as Nickelodeon's "iCarly" and Disney Channel's "Good Luck Charlie," network shows including "Criminal Minds" and "Parenthood," and movies including Disney's "The Muppets Movie" and Adam Sandler's "Jack and Jill."

here in pitch dark ... and watching motorists take no notice of lights being out," said Bob Spencer, a spokesman for the Los Angeles County Department of Public Works.

"What the weather experts are telling us are that these probably are the worst windstorms to hit (the area) in more than a decade," Spencer said, adding that preliminary reports suggest "extensive damage."

The windstorms were the result of an dramatic difference in pressure between a strong, high-pressure system and a cold, low-pressure system, meteorologists said. This funnels strong winds down mountain canyons and slopes.

The system was expected to bring similar, but less ferocious conditions as far away as Wyoming and New Mexico. The front will bring blustery weather to Oklahoma, Missouri and Indiana, meteorologists said.

In Southern California, high winds blew over at least six semitrailers before dawn on highways below the Cajon Pass in San Bernardino County, said California Highway Patrol Officer Mario Lopez.

Northeast of Los Angeles, foothill communities were hard hit as the winds swept down the San Gabriel Mountains. A 97-mph gust was recorded Wednesday night at Whitaker Peak in Los Angeles County.

Pasadena closed schools and libraries and declared a local emergency, the first since 2004. Fire officials said 40 people were evacuated from an apartment building after a tree collapsed, smashing part of the roof.

Two house fires, possibly caused by downed power lines, critically burned one person, seriously injured three others and forced seven others to flee, fire spokeswoman Lisa Derderian said

Along Huntington Drive, a major, six-lane thoroughfare that carries traffic into downtown Los Angeles, nearly every traffic light was dark across a distance of more than 10 miles, snarling commuter traffic.

Overnight, a falling tree collapsed the canopy of a gas station, but an employee shut off the pumps and no fuel spilled. Another tree toppled onto a car, trapping the driver, who was taken to a hospital.

In northwestern Los Angeles County, sheriff's deputies rescued two men whose boat capsized in 5-foot swells and gusting winds. They clung to the boat as high winds pushed them to a dam with a 200-foot drop.

They were treated for mild hypothermia, and one man, a former opera singer, was so appreciative that he serenaded the rescuers with "God Bless America."

More than 200,000 customers in Southern California were without electricity Thursday. About 26,000 customers were without power in the Santa Cruz Mountains of Northern California.

On Wednesday, 23 flights were diverted and several delayed at Los Angeles International Airport because of severe crosswinds and debris on runways, officials said. Power was out for an hour at passenger terminals.

The winds had died down by Thursday morning but some delays were reported. Departures to Las Vegas McCarran International Airport were averaging an hour's delay because of bad weather there.

The winds were colder but fiercer than the Santa Ana winds that often hit California in late fall, but they carried the same ability to dry out brush and push fires into conflagrations.

"Overwhelming scientific evidence shows that there are health problems caused by Santa Monica Airport," Lieu said.

The studies document black carbon and ultrafine particles emitted from the planes that fly in and out of SMO, which studies suggest can cause damage to the lungs and increase asthma and other immunological responses in the elderly and susceptible populations.

It may not be the same visible pollution people are used to, but it's pollution all the same, said Dr. John Froines, the UCLA Director of Southern California Environmental Health Sciences Center.

"We say the air has gotten cleaner over the last 10, 20 and 30 years. Well, it hasn't," Froines said. "It's better in terms of visibility, but there are diseases we see now that we didn't know about 10 years ago."

Not only do jet aircraft create what scientists suspect to be dangerous particles, they blast them further into the surrounding environment than other machines that produce similar pollution.

Dr. Suzanne Paulson, a professor and vice chair of the Department of Atmospheric & Oceanic Sciences at UCLA, drove an electric vehicle around the neighborhoods surrounding SMO measuring emissions.

She found emissions as far as 700 meters downwind from the airport. The average freeway will see its plume extend approximately 300 meters.

Although jet operations dominated the conversation, a study by Dr. Kim-Chi T. Hoang of the Environmental Protection Agency conducted at SMO showed elevated levels of lead, a dangerous chemical known to stunt cognitive growth in children.

Avgas, the fuel used by small planes at SMO, contains lead, while jet fuel does not.

Lead levels surrounding SMO are sometimes five to 10 times higher than other areas of Los Angeles, although they remain around half of the federally-established maximum.

The chemicals and particulates create what community members referred to as a "toxic soup" that they breathe in every day.

The recent studies have empowered residents to speak out, said Kathy Levitt of the Venice Neighborhood Council.

"We know more now than ever before, and we are more worried than ever before," Levitt said.

Attendees lined up to express their fears and concerns about the airport, documenting the noisiness of the planes as they fly over, the frequency and injustice of planes going over homes in West Los Angeles rather than Santa Monica.

"I came here tonight because I feel helpless," said Bill Koontz of the Mar Vista Community Council.

Only three voices spoke in support of the airport Wednesday, including Michael Kent, a pilot and Santa Monica resident who suggested that the focus of the hearing should be on how to solve the problems caused by SMO.

"I was hoping this would be more educational," Kent said, and urged the senator to look at the positive changes taking place that could improve emissions issues.

It might be more productive to look at mitigation rather than closure, given the Federal Aviation Administration's steadfast stance on keeping SMO open, Kent suggested.

The FAA has maintained that even in the wake of 2015, when certain agreements between City Hall and the federal agency expire, Santa Monica has a responsibility to operate SMO.

"The FAA is fully committed to preserving the federal investment and keeping this airport open and operating, including specific performance of these obligations," said Ian Gregor, spokesperson for the FAA.

Lieu promised that future hearings would be more inclusive of the pilot community, and not just feature those trying to close the airport.

"Originally we were just going to have the science, but residents wanted to speak," Lieu said. "The next hearing we're going to hold will be looking at potential options that we can take to mitigate the health risks at SMO. At that hearing, we'll look at what the City of Santa Monica is doing, what they're planning to do and invite the airport pilots and also community folks."

Apple juice can pose a health risk — from calories

MARILYNN MARCHIONE
AP Chief Medical Writer

It's true — apple juice can pose a risk to your health. But not necessarily from the trace amounts of arsenic that people are arguing about.

Despite the government's consideration of new limits on arsenic, nutrition experts say apple juice's real danger is to waistlines and children's teeth. Apple juice has few natural nutrients, lots of calories and, in some cases, more sugar than soda has. It trains a child to like very sweet things, displaces better beverages and foods, and adds to the obesity problem, its critics say.

"It's like sugar water," said Judith Stern, a nutrition professor at the University of California, Davis, who has consulted for candy makers as well as for Weight Watchers. "I won't let my 3-year-old grandson drink apple juice."

Many juices are fortified with vitamins, so they're not just empty calories. But that doesn't appease some nutritionists.

"If it wasn't healthy in the first place, adding vitamins doesn't make it into a health food," and if it causes weight gain, it's not a healthy choice, said Karen Ansel, a registered dietitian in New York and spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association.

The American Academy of Pediatrics says juice can be part of a healthy diet, but its policy is blunt: "Fruit juice offers no nutritional benefit for infants younger than 6 months" and no benefits over whole fruit for older kids.

Kids under 12 consume 28 percent of all juice and juice drinks, according to the academy. Nationwide, apple juice is second only to orange juice in popularity. Americans slurp 267 ounces of apple juice on average each year, according to the Food Institute's Almanac of Juice Products and the Juice Products Association, a trade group. Lots more is consumed as an ingredient in juice drinks and various foods.

JUICE

the U.S. is produced here. The rest comes from other countries, mostly China, Argentina, Chile and Brazil, the association says.

Television's Dr. Mehmet Oz made that a key point a few months ago when he raised an alarm — some say a false alarm — over arsenic in apple juice, based on tests his show commissioned by a private lab. The Food and Drug Administration said that its own tests disagreed and that apple juice is safe.

However, on Wednesday, after Consumer Reports did its own tests on several juice brands and called along with other consumer groups for stricter standards, the FDA said it will examine whether its restrictions on the amount of arsenic allowed in apple juice are stringent enough.

Some forms of arsenic, such as the type found in pesticides, can be toxic and may pose a cancer risk if consumed at high levels or over a long period.

All juice sold in the United States must be safe and meet U.S. standards, said Pat Faison, technical director for the juice association. As for making good nutrition choices, "a lot of the information that people need about fruit juices is on the label," she said.

So what's on those labels?

Carbohydrates, mostly sugars, in a much higher concentration than in milk. Juice has a small amount of protein and minerals and lacks the fiber in whole fruit, the pediatrics academy notes.

Drinking juice delivers a lot of calories quickly so you don't realize how much you've consumed, whereas you would have to eat a lot of apples to get the same amount, and "you would feel much, much more full from the apples," Ansel said.

"Whole fruits are much better for you," said Dr. Frank Greer, a University of Wisconsin, Madison, professor and former head of the pediatrics academy's nutrition committee.

He noted that the WIC program — the U.S. Department of Agriculture's nutrition program for Women, Infants and Children — revised its rules in 2005 to replace juice with baby food fruits and vegetables for children over 6 months. More than half of all infants born in the U.S. are eligible for WIC, and the government "really cut back severely on the ability of mothers to get fruit juices" through the program, Greer said.

If you or your family drinks juice, here is some advice from nutrition experts:

- Choose a juice fortified with calcium and vitamin D-3.
- Give children only pasteurized juice — that's the only type safe from germs that can cause serious disease.
- Don't give juice before 6 months of age, and never put it in bottles or covered cups that allow babies and children to consume it throughout the day, which can cause tooth decay. For the same reason, don't give infants juice at bedtime.
- Limit juice to 4 to 6 ounces per day for children ages 1 to 6, and 8 to 12 ounces for those ages 7 to 18.
- Encourage kids to eat fruit.
- Don't be swayed by healthy-sounding label claims. "No sugar added" doesn't mean it isn't full of naturally occurring sugar. And "cholesterol-free" is silly — only animal products contain cholesterol.

Stocks waver a day after big rally

MATTHEW CRAFT
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK A rally that drove major stock indexes up 7 percent this week stalled Thursday. Stock indexes ended slightly lower, a day after the market posted its biggest gain in two and a half years.

Goldman Sachs and other banks, the previous day's star-performers, gave up some of their gains. Costco, Nordstrom and other retailers rose after reporting stronger sales for November.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 25.65 points, or 0.2 percent, to close at 12,020.03. Travelers Cos. Inc. lost 2.2 percent, the biggest drop of the Dow's 30 stocks. Boeing Co. had the biggest gain, 3.3 percent.

The Dow soared 490 points Wednesday, its seventh-best gain on record, on news that central banks around the world slashed borrowing costs for banks in order to shore up the European financial system and prevent the region's debt crisis from getting worse.

If a major European bank were to fail or if one or more countries defaulted, investors fear it could result in a freeze-up in global lending markets like the one that occurred in 2008 when Lehman Brothers collapsed.

Another rise in applications for weekly unemployment benefits dampened the mood Thursday. The Labor Department said initial applications rose to 402,000 last week, the second weekly increase in a row. The figures didn't change expectations for the government's monthly labor report, which comes out Friday. Economists forecast that the unemployment rate will remain at 9 percent.

The S&P 500 index slipped 2.37, or 0.2

percent, to 1,244.59. The Nasdaq inched up 5.86, or 0.2 percent, to 2,626.

Investors often turn cautious following giant leaps, said Sam Stovall, chief equity strategist at S&P Capital IQ. The Dow shot up 813 points in the first three days of the week as fears ebbed that Europe's debt crisis would turn into a global panic. Another trigger for the rally that started Monday was news that a record number of shoppers went to stores over the Thanksgiving weekend.

"It's almost like rooting for a football team that won by a very big score," Stovall said. The next day, people are likely wondering whether the big victory was a one-off event or the start of a lasting trend.

"Lately, it seems like nothing lasts that long," Stovall said. News out of Europe has sent stocks swinging from large gains to deep losses. One week ago, the S&P 500 was down 7.9 percent for the year. The index is now within 13 points of breaking even.

Daily moves in the S&P 500 index have been three times more volatile in the past 13 weeks compared with the long-term average, Stovall said. Since 2000, the S&P 500 index moved up or down by 2 percent an average of 14 days every three months. Over the past 13 weeks, that's happened 45 times.

Traders took little encouragement Thursday from a better manufacturing report. The Institute for Supply Management said that manufacturing grew last month at the fastest pace since June.

The euro inched higher against the dollar as investors became less fearful about Europe's financial problems. Borrowing rates for France and Spain eased after both countries had successful auctions of new debt.

Law backs up Penn State's ongoing fight for secrecy

MARK SCOLFORO

Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa. Penn State won't release information that could shed light on the child sex-abuse case involving a former assistant football coach because the state open records law gives the school special status. That may soon change, as lawmakers question those protections while the university denies requests for records showing what key figures knew about the allegations before Jerry Sandusky was charged last month with molesting children.

The school has long had a reputation for guarding its secrets closely and zealously, and when the state attorney general announced the charges against Sandusky, she said their investigation — by a grand jury with subpoena power — had been hampered by an uncooperative atmosphere among unnamed school officials.

Penn State has cited its exemption from the law in the past month in denying requests by The Associated Press for documents related to a 1998 investigation into Sandusky that began when a woman complained he had showered with her son; a copy of his severance agreement; and emails among top administrators about Sandusky.

All it provided was a "police services activity report" that said an officer in June 1998 "requested an incident number for an ongoing investigation." The school cited its Right-to-Know Law exemption in declining to release more, but added that even if the law did apply fully to the school, other provisions would prevent disclosure of the records.

Sandusky is accused of abusing eight boys, some on campus, over 15 years, allegations that were not immediately brought to the attention of authorities even though investigators say high-level people at Penn State apparently knew about at least some of them.

The scandal has resulted in the ousting of school President Graham Spanier and long-time coach Joe Paterno, and has brought shame to one of college football's legendary programs. Athletic Director Tim Curley has been placed on administrative leave, and Vice President Gary Schultz, who was in charge of the university's police department, has stepped down.

Schultz and Curley are charged with lying to the grand jury and failure to report suspected abuse, and Sandusky, 67, is charged with child sex abuse. All maintain their innocence and await preliminary hearings later this month.

Penn State and the other three "state-related universities" — Pitt, Lincoln and Temple — together are collecting $560 million in state government subsidies this year. Unlike similar institutions in most other states, they function independently and do not have to produce the records required of state government agencies.

"You would think at least now they should understand why they should be bending over backwards in being more forthcoming in releasing information," said state Rep. Eugene DePasquale. The York County Democrat has signed up 31 co-sponsors for a bill he will introduce Monday to put the four schools completely under the Right-to-Know Law.

Heal the Bay is a non-profit environmental organization dedicated to making Santa Monica Bay and Southern California coastal waters safe and healthy for people and marine life.

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card™ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A-F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

Exercise tonight, Libra

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Understand that you might be feeling the undercurrents of other people's unacknowledged feelings. Others could be acting out. Curb your temper, and establish strong and sturdy limits. You will gain if you can be nonreactive. Can you? Tonight: Maintain an unusually low profile.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Decide what is too much effort and what is reasonable. The problem lies in getting a group consensus. Don't be surprised to see a couple of people flip their lid on the topic at hand. They feel passionately about the matter. Tonight: Only with pals.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Stay on top of work and demands. Pressure builds between you and others. You might wonder what is enough and when to let others know. Unless you like fireworks, the smart Twin won't wait until the last minute before his or her fuse blows. Tonight: A must appearance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ With as much anger being sprinkled left and right, you could be sarcastic or say something you might regret later. Clear the air as fast as possible. You don't need a scene. Tonight: A very important talk over dinner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ Deal with people with whom you feel comfortable and from whom you can handle feedback. Anger seems to be the underlying tenet no matter who does what and no matter what others say. Ask yourself if someone is trying to cover something up. Tonight: Share over dinner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Others seem to be on the warpath, but perhaps you are really the one sticking the pins in. Let someone know how you feel in a calm, quiet way. Creating uproar won't result in a positive situation. Take a walk to clear your mind. Tonight: Listen to another version of the same story.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Walk right in. Once you're energized, you'll get a lot done. In a sense, by focusing on what you are doing, you are detaching from another situation. You need some distance here. Use your anger to motivate you, but not to cause a problem. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ You leap over hurdles. Your smile lures in whatever you want. If you are single or attached, romantic thoughts could occupy a good part of your day. Tonight: Frisky you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Understand that although you are feeling better than you have in a while, at times you could be caught between a rock and a hard place. What determines the quality of the day is how you deal with this pressure. Tonight: Know that others are under the gun, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Of all signs, you can mobilize anger and use it to enhance a situation. Do just that, and let others see different ways of expressing rage. Communication flourishes, and what was difficult no longer is. Follow your instincts. Tonight: Meet a friend at a preferred place.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ You need to move forward and not get hung up on someone's disagreeable accusations or feelings. Indicate a willingness to discuss a problem. He or she just might be discharging anger on you that belongs to another person. Tonight: Your treat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You are feeling better than you have in a long time and may make a choice to proceed in a different direction. Others are disagreeable. You might want to settle someone's issue, if possible; otherwise, give this person a wide berth. Tonight: Your night to howl!

Happy birthday

This year learning how to express your not-so-nice feelings effectively and not threaten others will become easy. You will put in a significant effort to reach this place. You often are irritated with bosses and authority figures. If you are single, you easily could tumble into a love-hate relationship. Take your time. If you are attached, your vision of your life might be much different from your sweetie's. Don't judge. Try different styles. PISCES can be challenging.

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD
BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ The divorce of Anton Popazov and his wife, Nataliya, is about to go through (in 2008), but the couple are still contractually committed to the Moscow State Circus, where their act includes Nataliya's shooting an apple off of Anton's head with a crossbow. The Times of London asked Anton during a show in Sheffield, England, in February whether he was afraid. "I still trust her because Nataliya is very professional," he said. "(T)he show must go on."

■ Was Moammar Gadhafi the last of the "buffoon dictators," asked BBC News in October. His legend was earned not merely with his now-famous, dirty-old-man scrapbook of Condoleezza Rice photos. Wrote a BBC reporter, "One day (Gadhafi) was a Motown (backup) vocalist with wet-look permed hair and tight pants. The next, a white-suited comic-opera Latin American admiral, dripping with braid." Nonetheless, Gadhafi had competition, according to an October report in the journal Foreign Policy. For example, the son of Equatorial Guinea's dictator owns, among other eccentric luxuries, a $1.4 million collection of Michael Jackson memorabilia. North Korea's Kim Jong Il owns videos of almost every game Michael Jordan ever played for the Chicago Bulls.

■ In March, William Ernst, 57, owner of the QC Mart chain of Iowa convenience stores, excitedly announced a company-wide employee contest with a prize of $10 for guessing the next worker that Ernst will fire for breaking rules. "Once we fire the person, we will open all the envelopes (containing the entries), award the prize, and start the contest again." Ernst added, "And no fair picking Mike Miller from (the Rockingham Road store). He was fired at around 11:30 a.m. today for wearing a hat and talking on his cellphone. Good luck!!!!!!!!!" (After firing a cashier who had complained about Ernst's attitude, he challenged the woman's unemployment-compensation claim, but in October, a judge ruled in her favor.)

Built in a zero landfill plant, it comes with Symmetrical All-Wheel Drive standard and has won more awards than any other small SUV.* Just a few reasons why it's both gardener- and Mother Nature-approved. Love. It's what makes a Subaru, a Subaru.
