Shortfall hangs over SMMUSD bond projects

Measure BB money supporting facility upgrades throughout district

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

The Santa Monica-Malibu school district is moving forward with facility upgrades as it attempts to deal with a bond shortfall, unresolved claim issues and concerns about student welfare.

The local Board of Education last month received an update from Jan Maez, the district's chief financial officer, on projects funded by two bond measures that voters approved over the last decade.

"We're trying to fix as many things as we can in a very organized and strategic way," Maez said.

One major obstacle to the wide variety of improvements across SMMUSD is a shortfall of more than $31 million in funds linked to Measure BB, a $268-million bond that voters backed in 2006.

That figure includes a roughly $10-million deficit in Santa Monica High School projects, according to Maez. The shortfall is also tied to projects at Edison Language Academy, Olympic High School

SMC art mentor program shapes true creators

Amsi Bustillo thought he knew his identity as an artist. After all, his love for art began very early - when he was a student in Santa Monica's Lincoln Middle School. As a student at Santa Monica High School (Samohi), he took advanced drawing classes.

From Samohi, he headed to Santa Monica College as an art major and was accepted into SMC's Art Mentor Program (AMP), a unique learning experience for a select group of faculty-recommended students. Here, Bustillo would discover his true passion: abstraction.

St. Monica launches rugby team

Numerous football players join new winter sport

BY JEFFREY I. GOODMAN
Daily Press Staff Writer

When Drew Shaw realized that the St. Monica Catholic football team needed help with its tackling skills this season, the coach turned to an unexpected advisor: a rugby expert.

And as it turns out, the lessons imparted by parent volunteer Nick James didn't just yield an improved defense on the gridiron. They also built momentum towards the recent establishment of a rugby team at St. Monica, the first such squad in school history.

James is serving as coach of the new rugby program, which expands on the winter athletic options for students at the Santa Monica private school.

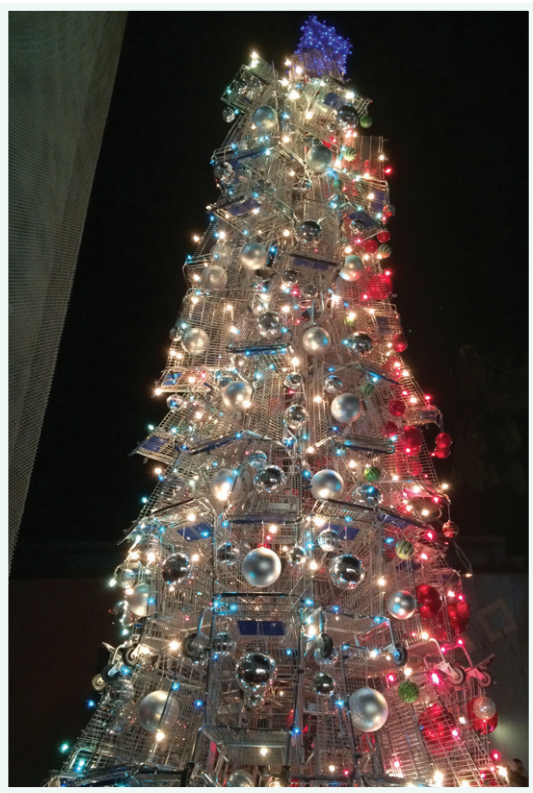

"It's becoming a much more popular sport," Shaw said. "It's going to be really good for us in the long run, not only for the football program but also for the recognition of our school and having that to offer. It's a pretty cool thing."

The Mariners' season, which is organized through Southern California Youth Rugby, began Dec. 4 with a match against Manhattan Beach-Mira Costa. Their campaign also includes tilts against Palos Verdes, Dana Point-Dana Hills, Los Angeles-View Park Prep,

New Roads School Names Luthern Williams Head of School

New Roads School has announced that Luthern Williams has been named Head of School. Williams previously served as Acting Head of School and the Director of New Roads Middle School. The School's Board of Trustees unanimously approved Williams' appointment at a recent meeting.

"Luthern's commitment and passion for New Roads School is undeniable," said New Roads Board of Trustees Chair Mark Windham. "He possesses a powerful skill set as an educator. He holds a vision for the school and an educational philosophy that inspires and looks to prepare students for today's world and that of the future. Luthern encapsulates the spirit and perspective that the New Roads community has diligently built over the last decades."

Williams has over twenty years experience as an administrator and English teacher in independent schools in New York City, Boston and Los Angeles. He has served as the Director of College Preparation and College Admissions at College Launch, an educational consulting company; the Director of Studies at the Oakwood School in North Hollywood; the Upper School Director at Beaver Country Day School in Boston; and the Director of Diversity at the Winsor school in Boston. Williams has contributed to the development of one of the premier teacher induction programs for independent school faculty, and has trained teachers in developing culturally responsive teaching methods and curricula. Williams earned his Bachelor's Degree at the University of Pennsylvania, and a Master's Degree in Education from Harvard University.

Williams said, "As an African-American, I am profoundly drawn to New Roads because it embodies the fundamental truths of America: 'all people are created equal' and deserve access to the 'pursuit of life, liberty, and happiness.' Through our authentically diverse learning environment, which is reflective of Los Angeles and the global community, we live these truths and nurture students who can serve as bridges of peace and unity in a world dangerously divided by differences. Educated in a truly diverse community, our students are encouraged to move beyond their immediate perspectives and to develop the capacity to think innovatively and collaboratively so that they will be prepared to solve the complex challenges their generation will face in the 21st century."

New Roads School is a college preparatory K-12 independent school with campuses in West Los Angeles (grades K-5) and Santa Monica (grades 6-12), California.

Civic Center ice rink/soccer complex a bad idea

THE DEBATE ON THE FUTURE OF THE Civic Auditorium rages on. Options are to "demolish" or "renovate" at a cost of $50M plus. Renovation would likely involve instituting new revenue-producing resources in the civic center to pay for it.

One of the suggestions offered is to convert the 1,100 car surface parking lot next to the Auditorium into a sports facility. Powerful outside interests including the Los Angeles Kings hockey club and the Los Angeles Galaxy soccer club are pushing for ice rinks and soccer fields. The Bring Hollywood Home Foundation (BHHF) which creates new business models to bring back jobs in the creative/entertainment economy is supporting their effort.

Will a sports complex best serve Santa Monica residents? No. A professional level, free-standing, hockey-soccer sports facility complete with a two-surface ice rink facility and a multi-use sports field on the roof will provide benefits to just a small segment of residents.

BHHF claimed in their recent "Bring Back The Ice" press release, "We… believe this facility will serve the not only the local community's needs but those of the Greater Los Angeles Area needs for recreation entertainment." Got it. Santa Monica becomes the playground for the Los Angeles area, but what about something the majority of us can use and benefit from?

I don't buy their assertion that this is "an exceptional opportunity for the City of Santa Monica to team up with the Los Angeles Kings and LA Galaxy to bring back the glory of the Civic Auditorium it so richly deserves." How is a hockey/soccer sports complex going to "bring back" the long gone "glory days" of the Civic Auditorium which is basically an outdated concert hall/theater?

Funding such a major sports facility would require a combination of resources that could include crowdfunding, city funding (tax monies) and corporate funding. The proposed sports complex is a big benefit for the L.A. Kings and L.A. Galaxy and there is some value for hockey and soccer youth.

But, the Civic Center needs focus. Shouldn't we be looking at arts and cultural amenities instead of a glorified corporate gymnasium?

BHHF will make a presentation to City Council in Mid-December. Let's hope those on the dais just say "no" to this latest takeover by outside moneyed interests.

PARKLETS A BIG LIABILITY

Reaction was swift to my comments in last week's column about City Council's approval of three (not two) parklets or mini-parks to be built onto parking spots in front of three Main Street eateries. I called it a bad idea. So did a former city attorney who asked me if anyone had thought about liability.

The mini-parks would be located in the street gutters and consist of a platform, seating, bicycle racks, and other amenities such as umbrellas. Adjacent restaurants will partner with the city to maintain, oversee and operate the parklets as part of a three-year pilot program.

More than one person commented that the mini-parks were sitting ducks for an out-of- control car or truck. "People are going to be killed or injured and the city is going to be liable," I was told.

"Didn't we learn from the Farmers' Market tragedy?" offered another reader referring to an incident in Downtown Santa Monica in July, 2003 when a run-away vehicle plowed into a non-barricaded Arizona Avenue Farmers' Market killing ten people and injuring 63. The city of Santa Monica and others paid out $21 million to settle dozens of civil lawsuits arising from that crash.

One reader asked if the new green spaces would become encampments for the homeless at night when businesses were closed. Yeah, probably.

GOULD GONE

I was also asked be a number of people about my reaction to former Santa Monica City manager Rod Gould being forced to resign from his new job at Management Partners.

Last June, Santa Monica's watchdog group Transparency Project filed a civil complaint against Gould after he accepted a position as vice president at Management Partners in San Jose the month before.

The settlement came after it was alleged that he violated the Oaks Initiative -- Santa Monica's anti-corruption law -- by accepting employment after he signed contracts with the Management Partners consulting firm while City Manager.

The Transparency Project is a volunteer group of residents who monitor openness and accountability in City Hall. Their complaint cited six times when Gould approved contracts between the city and Management Partners that he eventually went to work for.

Big congrats to Mary Marlow, Elizabeth Van Denburgh and Project Chair Nancy Coleman. They called the settlement an important victory for Santa Monica. "Unfortunately, residents had to do the enforcing because the City Attorney has refused to do so," Marlow said.

The Initiative is the city's anti-corruption ordinance that prohibits public officials from receiving personal or campaign benefits from a person or organization that benefited from that official's decision made while in office or employed by the city. Those provisions are in place for two years following the official's departure from the city.

As part of the settlement, Gould agreed to resign from Management Partners among other conditions. The case received much attention because Santa Monica's City Attorney Marsha Moutrie had said that the Oaks Initiative was probably unenforceable In Gould's case because he was a city employee and not an elected official.

Lives are worth a few minutes

I WAS WINCING AS I READ BILL BAUER'S next-to-latest diatribe, the one entitled "Pedestrian Action Plan filled with rhetoric." He begins by lambasting the City for the questions he answered in what he calls a "community survey from City Hall."

I'm sad to say that a pedestrian action group called Santa Monica Walks! was the author of that survey - sad because obviously Mr. Bauer didn't see our name at the top and bottom of the sheet, and also didn't notice that it was one page, not three or four. I guess our 2" high logo wasn't big enough for him. Our questions were designed to find out what most pedestrians in Santa Monica see as obstacles to walking more.

The purpose of our group is to represent pedestrian interests in Santa Monica - in our highly autocentric city, where dozens of people will turn up at City Council meetings to yell about traffic from a driver's point of view, pedestrians have traditionally been forgotten in conversations about road and street design. While Mr. Bauer may walk now and again, I would assume from his columns, many of which are angry rants about traffic and ill-behaved pedestrians and bicyclists, that he uses a car much of the time.

Contrary to Mr. Bauer's creative accusations about the survey, our group is independent of the City and is modeled on Los Angeles Walks and other pedestrian activist groups like 8-80 Cities, California Walks, and America Walks. We are thrilled to live in a City that has the funding and the foresight to engage in a Pedestrian Action Plan, and were happy to be able to write a letter outlining the findings from our surveys. One of our major recommendations is sure to annoy Mr. Bauer: the city-wide reduction of speed limits to 20 mph.

OUR RECOMMENDATIONS WERE AS FOLLOWS:

1) Adopt a goal of zero pedestrian deaths, similar to many cities' "Vision Zero Plans." Multiple city departments should take specific responsibility for reducing pedestrian injuries, and work together to integrate their efforts.

2) Hire a Pedestrian Coordinator to make sure that the City moves in a holistic and integrated manner toward a Vision Zero goal of no pedestrian injuries or deaths.

3) Enact a city-wide reduction in automobile speeds through street narrowing and/or renovation of streets to be Complete Streets;

We would like to see a maximum speed of 30 m.p.h. on those surface streets currently set at 35 m.p.h. where possible (San Vicente, Lincoln Blvd., Ocean Park Blvd., 26th Street, Pico Blvd., lower sections of Olympic Blvd.).

4) Request that the Santa Monica Police Department focus year-round on driver behaviors most responsible for pedestrian deaths: speeding, failure to yield in crosswalks, and distracted driving.

5) Shorten crossing distances where possible, through the use of curb extensions and tighter turning radii for traffic lanes, and center medians.

7) Restrict right turns on red at heavily used intersections (e.g. downtown, near Santa Monica High School).

8) Develop a transparent, inclusive and systematic approach to striping crosswalks in intersections; always use high-visibility (Continental) striping.

There are many sites in the city where crosswalks are striped on only two of four sides (e.g., Pearl Street and 16th Street, Pearl Street and 17th Street, Montana Avenue and 9th Street, etc.). Some thoroughfares, like Wilshire, have all four sides of the crossing boxed with high-visibility striping, but most do not. We would like to see all four edges of the intersection striped when either street is a major thoroughfare.

9) Adopt a transparent, inclusive and systematic approach to installing crosswalks on major thoroughfares.

For example, given the signalized intersections at 14th and 17th Streets, why is there a crosswalk at Montana Avenue and 15th Street, but not one at 16th Street? Why is there one at Santa Monica Blvd. and 9th Street but not one at 10th Street?

10) Increase/improve sidewalk lighting on heavily used pedestrian thoroughfares, especially those around current and future transit stops.

PEDESTRIAN CONVENIENCE

1) Establish 15' sidewalk minimums in high-use parts of the City for new development.

2) Increase funding for street trees, street furniture and public art.

3) Install responsive pushbuttons.

4) Install mid-block crossings that reflect pedestrian desire lines (e.g., Ocean Park Blvd. between 16th and 17th Streets).

5) Mandate greater oversight by Public Works of City staff and outside contractors installing utility placement in the sidewalk.

For example, the crosswalk button at 16th and Ocean Park Blvd. is located on a free-standing pole that is directly in the middle of the sidewalk.

DATA ON CRASHES INVOLVING PEDESTRIANS

1) Because the city cannot afford to fund all pedestrian interventions at once, policy makers must be provided with data that make prioritization possible. Tracking pedestrian use data at all major inter sections at regular intervals will make it possible to determine which interventions should be implemented. A pedestrian coordinator could direct this prioritization effort.

2) It is imperative that current crash data collection methods continue unchanged. While SMPD is planning to stop collecting data on non-injury crashes, we believe this will lead to a false "decline" in reported pedestrian injuries, and from there to unacceptable complacence around pedestrian safety. Adrenaline masks injuries, and victims of crashes often try to walk away. We must continue to collect data on all collisions, not just those where an injury is immediately apparent.

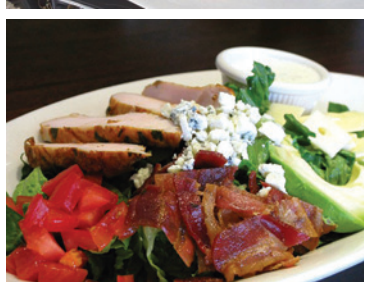

We agree with Mr. Bauer on one thing: a safe pedestrian environment necessarily slows traffic. We encourage the City to do all that it can to achieve Vision Zero. In spite of Mr. Bauer's state of perpetual annoyance at being delayed by other road users, our lives and our children's lives are surely worth a few minutes of his time.

RUGBY

Bellflower-St. John Bosco and Long Beach-Wilson. Home games will be played at Webster Middle School in West Los Angeles.

More than 20 students have joined the new rugby team at St. Monica, which exemplifies the growth of the sport in Southern California and across the country.

It all started when James, who is active in the Santa Monica Rugby Club, approached Shaw last year about starting a rugby team at St. Monica. Shaw facilitated discussions with school administrators about adding rugby as a winter sport.

This past football season, James taught tackling to the Mariners football team twice a week and began drumming up interest in a sport that is unfamiliar to many American athletes and fans. Helping with the recruiting effort was his son, Dylan, a standout running back who is also an experienced rugby player.

"We got a bunch of guys from football, but we've got a few guys who've never played a sport in their life," James said. "And they're having success. It's been really fantastic."

But before teaching the newcomers the basics of rugby, James had to convince St. Monica coaches that the new sport wouldn't negatively impact the rosters of other winter teams. Ultimately, he said, he can envision expanding the rugby program with non-tackle versions at elementary and middle school levels and creating a pipeline for the high school team.

Those are long-term goals for a program that was scrambling to fill out its roster just a few weeks ago. With money invested in uniforms and the season quickly approaching, James was worried that St. Monica wouldn't have enough students to field a competitive team.

"We all started to panic," he said.

Struggling to find field space, a small group of players began practicing at Reed Park across the street from the St. Monica church.

"Kids from the school started coming and hanging around, and we just started grabbing those kids," James said. "They would say, 'No, no, I'm just here to watch,' but we would just grab the guy, throw him in the game and teach him what was going on. ... All of a sudden, it just took off like wildfire. And it's still growing."

Pering into our future

IT MAY BE CLICHÉ TO SAY THE SANTA Monica Pier is iconic, but it's true. More than many other one-of-a-kind icons, the Pier has meant many different things to many different people, ever since it first opened in 1909 - from serving as a de facto public park and an affordable entertainment destination, to a place for people watching and experiencing raw nature - and much, much more.

Over the years, both the Pier's physical structure has changed, as have the physical structures on top of it - sometimes by force of nature, like the great winter storms of 1983 that destroyed 1/3 of the Pier's length. Other times from societal trends, like the creation of the La Monica Ballroom in 1924 (then the largest dance floor on the West Coast), which was converted into a roller-skating rink in the 1950s and ultimately demolished in 1962.

Today two outside forces are again going to reshape the Pier - the need to address earthquake safety; and the coming of the Expo Light Rail line.

Earthquake safety means the existing bridge connecting Ocean Ave. to the Pier must come down, and a new one rebuilt to current seismic standards. Already an Environmental Impact Report study is underway to evaluate different new bridge designs. Because of the Expo line, the direct flow of people to the Pier is also expected to change in favor of more pedestrians.

But perhaps the bigger question is "will the Pier stay funky, affordable and accessible, while continuing to evolve with the times?" The Santa Monica Pier Corporation Board has been discussing this over the last couple of years, and has brought in the Roma Design Group from San Francisco to stimulate creative approaches.

Perhaps the driving force (pun intended) behind possible changes on the Pier is the proposal for a second bridge leading to the Pier across Moss Ave., which is a tiny street that runs down the short slope from Appian Way to Ocean Front Walk, just south of Big Dean's Oceanfront Cafe.

The idea is to redirect regular auto traffic there, then move pedestrians and cyclists down the replacement bridge, without the current conflict with motor vehicles - in effect, extending the pedestrian orientation of the soon-to-be-completed Colorado Esplanade, with its new 20'-30' sidewalk widths, to facilitate thousands of arrivals to the Pier from the new Expo Light Rail station at 4th/Colorado.

A PIER ESCALATOR?

One of the goals for the replacement bridge is to connect to the Pier earlier, so that it doesn't visually obstruct any of the Hippodrome (Santa Monica's first National Historic landmark building), and instead to create a more vibrant public space where it does connect.

To facilitate this, Roma - whose consultant history with Santa Monica goes back to 1980s role in helping create the Third Street Promenade - has suggested incorporating both an escalator as part of the bridge, and an elevator coming up from Parking Lot #1, north of the Pier.

Since cars seeking to park on the Pier would be entering via the Moss Ave. bridge, the open space to the east of The Albright restaurant where cars currently enter, could be used for other purposes. Roma has suggested a new building there, with a first-floor food market and an open glass community event space on the top (which could also produce additional revenue to address projected increased Pier operating and capital costs.)

If such a new building is constructed, a critical issue is to retain visual and pedestrian permeability to the south towards Ocean Park. To accomplish this, the existing structure to the east of this open space - which currently houses the Pier Maintenance building, the Police substation and a bike rental - should come down, and the new building built in its place, thus retaining more of the existing open space, which is also critical for the high-volume pedestrian flow from the (also iconic) Twilight Concert Series.

I was on the City Council and supported the police substation when it was built. But this large substation has not fulfilled the dynamic role we envisioned. With the existing maintenance functions already planned to be relocated under the Pier, we need to rethink this space. To its immediate west are beautiful public restrooms, which are easily accessible on their west side, but not so much on their east, because the existing maintenance/police/bike building crowds them. A new building (with perhaps a smaller substation) should be set away enough to remedy this.

HOW MUCH PARKING ON THE PIER?

As part of the City's "Clean Beaches Project," Santa Monica will construct underground storm-water runoff storage tanks beneath the Deauville Parking Lot (next to PCH north of the Pier), to divert an estimated 1.6 million gallons of often-polluted runoff from the Pier and Pico Kenter drainage basins away. In addition, a set of storm water runoff storage tanks will be placed at the Pico-Kenter Outfall pump station, located just south of the Pier. Together those tanks will be used to "harvest" runoff from the drainage basins, divert them from the Bay for treatment at the Santa Monica Urban Runoff Recycling Facility and then distribute them for non-potable uses - critical in times of extended drought.

A side benefit is that when this project is completed, a still-to-be-determined number of parking spaces from the Pier deck will be relocated there at grade. That will provide flexibility to pull the remaining parking spaces back from the Pier's southern edge, creating a new paseo there with benches and picnic tables. Along with more efficiently re-striping the remaining parking spaces, Roma believes a new public event space can be created in the existing parking area, which can also generate new rental revenue.

Of course many in the community have advocated removing all parking from the Pier, with the exception of for handicap access. One of my greatest heartbreaks from my time on the City Council was when my April 2002 motion to place underground parking under what eventually became Tongva Park and Ken Genser Square lost in a 4-3 vote. The idea was that drivers headed to the Pier would get off the I-10 freeway and park, then walk to the Pier, activating Tongva Park more (especially at night) and lessening

More action needed

Editor:

Our mayor is at the United Nations Climate Change conference in Paris to announce our city's move to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 80 percent below 1990 levels by 2050. I applaud our city council for adopting this goal. At the same time, however, I would like to point out that San Diego's council has approved a climate action plan that takes their city to 100 percent renewable power by 2035.

Santa Monica has consistently earned the reputation as a leader in environmental protection. Shouldn't our city council be considering as aggressive a goal as our neighbor to the south serving a population 15 times the size of Santa Monica?

We have all heard that the cumulative effect of the emissions reduction being pledged in Paris this week still falls short of what's necessary to halt the trajectory of climate change. Additional bold steps will be necessary to insure that our children and grand children are able to have the same quality of life we enjoy.

traffic congestion at Ocean/Colorado. At the time we even had Redevelopment Agency funding to finance it.

But as fate has it, had we done that, we would not have been eligible for the Caltrans funding that is today paying for the Pier Bridge replacement project, which is contingent upon providing automobile access to the Pier. This is not to say that some day most parking could not be removed from the Pier, but only if/when a nearby financially feasible option is available.

PRESERVING THE PIER'S SOUL

One of the appealing aspects of Roma's proposals is that they can provide additionally needed revenues to fund Pier operations and capital improvements, without necessarily gentrifying nor corporatizing the Pier. Part of the Pier's iconic nature was the resident revolt in 1972-1973 against plans by the then City Council to tear down the Pier and build an island in the Bay, with hotels and a convention center. Recently retold in a heartfelt play written by local Pier historian Jim Harris (author of Santa Monica Pier: A Century on the Last of the Pleasure Pier), and performed in the open air at the end of the Pier, that Save the Pier movement reflected so much about what makes Santa Monica special. Today we need to ensure we retain those values while envisioning the Pier's future.

NEXT STEPS

With the construction of the Pier Bridge Replacement project still a few years off, many decisions about what happens on the Pier don't have to be made yet. That's why at its next public meeting at 6:30 p.m. on December 17 - at the Santa Monica Aquarium - the Pier Corporation Board will vote upon a conceptual document to frame future discussion about these questions.

So far most of the public attending these meeting have been from the Pier's immediate community - including the Pier lessees, community members interested in historic preservation issues related to the Pier, and some like me who walk/bike/rollerblade there almost every day. Now it's your turn to be there and add your thoughts.

and John Adams Middle School.

The shortfall could be even larger depending on the actual costs of facility projects in Malibu, Maez said.

The board has previously discussed covering the shortfall with funds from Measure ES, a $385-million bond that voters passed in 2012.

Meanwhile, money from Measure BB is supporting a variety of upgrades at district schools.

A new science and technology building opened at Samohi at the beginning of the school year, and Maez said the district is resolving problems related to fume hood noise in its laboratories.

Additional projects at the high school are on hold as officials work on a broad plan for renovations.

At Edison, new classrooms and administrative facilities have been in use since January. A play area is expected to be ready next month, and preschool renovations will likely be completed by August.

Maez said additional fencing will be installed along Kansas Street to address concerns about campus security at the elementary school, where upgrades have taken much longer than originally projected.

Plans for modernization of Olympic High School have been approved by the Division of the State Architect, a California oversight agency. The district hopes to award a contract in within the next three months, begin construction by mid-2016 and finish the project before the start of the 2017-18 school year.

It's anticipated that the campus will be closed this coming summer, and Maez said it's possible that summer programs will be moved to Samohi.

Also in the works is a new district data center, Maez said. The project started with an estimated budget of less than $750,000 but has grown into a $3-million endeavor.

Bids for construction were due last month, and the school board could award a contract as soon as Dec. 10.

The project is slated for completion by the start of the 2016-17 school year, according to a district report.

The upgrades are rolling out following the district's hiring of a bond program manager earlier this year. Massetti Consulting is making $420,000 in the first year of a 3-year contract.

City of Santa Monica

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City of Santa Monica invites Proposals for:

Design Engineering Services for the Clean Beaches Project for Pier & Pico-Kenter Basins
SP2356

The City of Santa Monica is inviting proposals from qualified persons or firms interested in engineering design services for the Clean Beaches Project for Pier & Pico-Kenter Watersheds. To improve beach water quality and increase the City's drought resiliency, the City will construct a set of concrete subgrade stormwater runoff storage tanks north of the Pier beneath the Deauville Parking Lot. In addition, a set of smaller prefabricated stormwater runoff storage tanks will be placed at the Pico-Kenter Outfall pump station located just south of the Pier. These tanks will be used to harvest runoff from the Pier and Pico-Kenter drainage basins. The harvested runoff will then be diverted for treatment at the Santa Monica Urban Runoff Recycling Facility (SMURRF) and distributed for non-potable uses. As part of this project, the Deauville site will be designed as a public parking lot with approximately 110 parking stalls. Parking lot design should meet the local zoning and municipal code. This effort would be coordinated with the California Coastal Commission to relieve the same amount of parking from the Pier Deck.

Proposers shall provide three (3) hard paper copies and one (1) electronic copy of the proposal via email to selim.eren@smgov.net, not later than 5:00 p.m. on January 14, 2016. Size of the electronic proposal shall not exceed 9.9MB

RFP Documents may be obtained by logging onto the City's bidding website at: http://www.smgov.net/planetbids/behind them necessarily," says Bustillo. His professors at SMC began by asking him to consider his influences and what drives him to create. Then, through the unique experience of working intensively with faculty mentors, visiting artists, and fellow students in the AMP, Bustillo began to challenge his art practice - and create - in a way he had never done before.

He graduated from SMC with an Associate Degree in Art and transferred to UCLA as an art major last fall. The critical foundation that the AMP gave him influenced his decision to go to UCLA, which - like SMC - has a strong emphasis on what he calls "…a well-roundedness in every means of art-seeking."

The AMP began in the 1970s and alumni include artists like Ichiro Irie (of Jaus Gallery), Susanne Melanie Berry, and Lucas Kazansky. In the 1990s, SMC also had a program called The College of Design Art and Architecture which produced prominent artists like Mark Bradford whose socially-relevant, large-scale abstract paintings have received much critical acclaim.

In a June 2015 New Yorker article, Bradford describes how he saw an ad for the program at SMC that would provide mentoring and studio space for artists whose portfolios showed promise. A teacher at SMC named Jill Giegerich saw the potential in his work and kept encouraging him to apply to professional art school (she eventually recommended him to the director of the California Institute of the Arts, which Bradford later attended on a full scholarship).

SMC Art professor Carlson Hatton, the current faculty mentor in the AMP, is a tour de force in his field. A graduate of the BFA program from the Cooper Union; de'Ateliers, Amsterdam, and the studio arts laureate program at the Jan van Eyck Academie in the Netherlands, Hatton's work has exhibited at venues like the de Appel Arts Centre, Ruth Bachofner Gallery, SMC's Pete and Susan Barrett Art Gallery, and the Patrick Painter Gallery at Bergamot Station.

"We require students to make work which is personal…to fuse technique, idea and their own interest," says Hatton. "A student in the AMP ends up with a well-rounded portfolio and gets exposure to what they will encounter in a four year school - lots of projects that don't need hand-holding and a 'looseness' so they can incorporate their own ideas. It can be intimidating for them to be given so much freedom and to have to put that out for critique."

SMC alum and UCLA architecture major Steve Martinez describes the AMP as "driving the course into unmarked territory." Like Bustillo, he credits the program for shaping his goals as an artist and architect in a couple of ways.

"First, it was the emphasis on collaboration," says Martinez. "SMC runs under the flag of being an incredibly diverse school, but 'Mentor' began dissecting that vast diversity within the field of art. We were encouraged to exchange and merge our ideas to form alternative questions and problems regarding someone's work."

SMC alum Hertz Alegrio, a student at Art Center College of Design, said that the AMP instilled in him an interest in pursuing fine art - whereas he had come with a set idea of being just an illustrator. He points out another great appeal of the program.

"Being around so much creativity every week inspired me to no end," says Alegrio. "Not only did many of my fellow SMC students become lifelong friends, but enduring artistic inspirations too."

The AMP meets every Saturday at a hangar in SMC's airport campus for five hours and consists of working sessions, demos, and critique. Students also visit galleries, museums, and artists' studios. The program features open studio events, an annual group show at SMC's Barrett Art Gallery, and has also featured prominent LA based artists like Meg Cranston, Zak Smith, Jay Stuckey, and Michelle Carla Handel as guest speakers.

SMC offers associates degrees in art and art history, and has one of the best foundation art programs in California. Graduates are recruited and given scholarships by the best art schools in the country including CalArts, Art Center College of Art and Design, San Francisco Art Institute, the Chicago Art Institute, and the Rhode Island College of Art and Design. More information is available at www.smc.edu/academicprograms/art.

Within the last year alone, 12 AMP students have headed to UCLA, UC Berkeley, the Rhode Island College of Art and Design, and the Otis College of Art and Design, among others. The AMP is for full-time students who have completed their general education requirements with a GPA of 3.0 or higher, have taken a couple studio classes in which their work has proven outstanding and are developing a portfolio to apply to four-year schools. An SMC Art professor recommends them to the program on their artistic talent.

LEGEND

WET -- grades for days of recorded rainfall and the following 3 days
ns -- no sample taken

Heal the Bay's Beach Report Card℠ is based on weekly water quality monitoring data provided by the City of Los Angeles' Environmental Monitoring Division and the Los Angeles County Department of Health Services. Data is analyzed as soon as it is made available to us by the public agencies. Beaches are graded on an A–F scale based on the risk of ocean users becoming ill. Samples are analyzed for bacteria—enterococcus, total and fecal coliforms—that indicate biological pollution. A fact sheet detailing the exact methodology used in determining grades for each location is available from the office or on our web site. The report is not designed to measure the amount of trash or toxins found at local beaches.

The Beach Report Card is an indication of past water quality and is not a warranty of the current safety of those areas surveyed. Our lawyers are happy.

CRIME WATCH

BY DAILY PRESS STAFF

Crime Watch is culled from reports provided by the Santa Monica Police Department. These are arrests only. All parties are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ON NOVEMBER 22, AT ABOUT 4:03 A.M.

Officers responded to the 2800 block of Arizona Avenue to investigate a traffic collision. The comments of their call said that a female, White, wearing black clothing and driving a white Toyota sedan, steered into a parked vehicle. She then tried to leave the area on foot. Witnesses took the driver's car keys and detained her until the officers arrived. The driver, identified as Melanie Champagne, showed several obvious signs of alcohol intoxication, including swaying from side to side, slurred speech, and trouble walking. She also smelled strongly of alcoholic beverages and had trouble focusing on the officers' questions. Champagne admitted the Toyota was her vehicle, but denied driving (even though witnesses observed her behind the wheel at the time of the crash). The officers commenced a Driving Under the Influence investigation and performed Field Sobriety Tests. Following the test, the officers arrested Champagne for DUI and Hit and Run and towed her vehicle. Champagne, 33, of Alta Dena, had bail set at $35,000.

Sudoku

Fill in the blank cells using numbers 1 to 9. Each number can appear only once in each row, column, and 3x3 block. Use logic and process of elimination to solve the puzzle. The difficulty level ranges from (easiest) to (hardest).

Difficulty Level ★

GETTING STARTED

There are many strategies to solving Sudoku. One way to begin is to examine each 3x3 grid and figure out which numbers are missing. Then, based on the other numbers in the row and column of each blank cell, find which of the missing numbers will work. Eliminating numbers will eventually lead you to the answer.

NEWS OF THE WEIRD BY CHUCK SHEPARD

■ Watch Your Language: (1) Recently added to the list of words and phrases to be officially discouraged on campus, according to the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee's website: "political correctness." The phrase is said to be a "microaggression" that might make some students feel uncomfortable or unsafe if they hear it or read it. (2) In November, the University of Vermont held a (voluntary) three-day "retreat" open only to students who "self-identify as white," so that they can study the implications of "white privilege" in society (e.g., "what does it mean to be white?" and "how does whiteness impact you?").

■ Mental health practitioners, writing in the January (2011) issue of the journal Substance Abuse, described two patients who had recently arrived at a clinic in Ranchi, India, after allowing themselves to be bitten by cobras for recreational highs. Both men had decades-long substance-abuse issues and decided to try what they had heard about on the street. One, age 44, bitten on the foot, experienced "a blackout associated with a sense of well-being, lethargy and sleepiness." The other, 52, reported "dizziness and blurred vision followed by a heightened arousal and a sense of well-being," and apparently was so impressed that he returned to the snake charmer two weeks later for a second bite.

Meet a friend for eggnog, Libra

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You generally are as extroverted and intense as they come. You might not understand what is going on with you, but you'll have a need to retreat. Process a matter about a loved one. Don't make the assumption that this experience is negative; it's just different. Tonight: As you like it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You could be in the position of allowing others to take the lead, when you normally wouldn't. Consider how you could change the way you and others see a situation, but keep those thoughts to yourself unless someone asks for feedback. Tonight: The only answer is "yes."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ You could be concentrating on one specific issue and doing some research. You might have difficulty indulging in conversations about other matters, as your mind is elsewhere. Be willing to take a risk. Tonight: Take the time you need for yourself and/or a project.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You might not be able to close down the muse that lies within you. Your creativity can't be shut off easily. You might want to remain relatively discreet. You will know when the time is right to share more of your thoughts and ideas. Tonight: Let the fun begin!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You'll want to rethink a personal situation. You might feel as if you see eye to eye with the other party involved and can come to an agreement. You rarely feel strongly about these type of situations, but decide to make it OK anyway. Tonight: Head home early, if you can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ You might want more free time to visit with a partner. You could be overwhelmed by an option you never expected to have in your life. Enjoy the moment, but be rational in your choices. What a loved one feels could be off as well. Tonight: Continue the happy moment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You will be very tempted to make a certain purchase and/or head in a certain direction. You will find the experience or the item to be close to impossible to turn down. Make sure you are aware of the costs of this expenditure. Tonight: Meet a friend for some eggnog.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Sometimes, when we overthink a personal matter, we get into trouble. Perhaps you need to take some time off for holiday shopping, if nothing else. You could be taken aback by how much fun you have doing what often has seemed like a chore. Tonight: The world is your oyster.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Several friends might notice a serene quality emanating from you. It more than likely stems from a personal matter. In fact, some of you might be upset about an issue, but you are on your way to letting it go, or at least seeing it from a different perspective. Tonight: All is well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Stay focused on the long term. Often, you find that others don't seem to understand where you are coming from. All the activity that surrounds you needs to be pushed away if you are to accomplish anything. Politely isolate yourself. Tonight: Open the door for others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ One-on-one relating takes on a new level of caring that somehow leaks into other areas of your life. The possibilities for change are many, should you decide to take a leap of faith. Understand that your expectations sometimes are off. Tonight: Out till the wee hours.

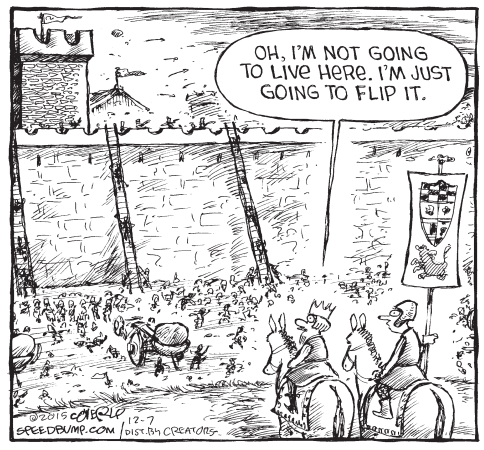

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Look at the big picture, and you will make a much better decision. A situation that you might have perceived as being hostile likely has become one of caring. You feel much better once you break down barriers between you and others. Tonight: Start hanging up some mistletoe.

Monday, December 7, 2015

This year others might be surprised by the amount of caring that emanates from you. A female friend or a family member could take on unusual significance. If you are single, you can't be too discriminating. You easily could meet someone who is not portraying his or her authentic self. Take your time getting to know people. If you are attached, the two of you frequently are in different places at different times. The importance of downtime as a couple must be emphasized. Schedule more weekends away together. SCORPIO is a natural healer.
