New Business

Laine Harrington reviewed the discussions from the year and presented options for zoning text amendments. The history of Old Beach and the recent housing market changes were discussed. The text amendment options discussed were the Conditional Use Permit, additional building types, and nonconformity section amendments. The clarification was made that the CUP option could only apply to the overlay, not the whole city. Amending any portion of the Nonconformity Section would affect the whole city, not just the overlay.

Robert Fatovic asked how many 30' wide lots are in existence. Brandon Hackney explained the establishment of the 30' wide lots, and how these small lots have historically been used.

The inclusion of new building types into the overlay was discussed. Staff will create various scenarios for the building types and how the setbacks would change. It was discussed that pervious cover and landscaping should still be a priority, even with the potential shift in buildable areas. The concern of loss of green space versus giving more building space was discussed. The loss of tree canopy is also a concern for the group.

It was discussed how the design guidelines say "should" not "shall", and how Virginia Beach has less ability to influence design in comparison to other localities. Due to market changes, Old Beach is not an affordable neighborhood anymore.

The meeting was adjourned at 4:48 p.m.
